To Whom It May Concern:

It is my privilege to share with you information concerning Jacobo Adberstein, student at Ronald Reagan High School in San Antonio, Texas. For the past four years it has been my privilege to observe this young man. While his course load is extremely impressive, his countenance and integrity have impressed me. From his gracious spirit in the cafeteria, to his calm demeanor in the classroom, Jacobo exemplifies a very impressive character.

His course load exclusively contains advanced classes. In order to maintain the grades that he has, his work ethic is impeccable. The teachers at Reagan are demanding and provide a rigorous curriculum; he is able to excel in his classes. He currently holds a GPA of 105 and is ranked 82 out of 852 students. As you know from his records he is a PSAT National Hispanic Merit winner as well. He does not stop with academic excellence but involves himself in Robotics, technology competitions, Physics boat competitions and UIL Academics. He is involved in His youth group at church and has served as a translator through a software company.

Speaking of serving as a translator, he has served as a translator for me. We have a native Japanese teacher who is truly new to the English language. His patience and ability to articulate necessary information has been extremely helpful. Academics are valued at Reagan High School and he has proven to be exceptional. While academics are crucial to our advancement, academics must be coupled with the ability to navigate circumstances and life.

With complete confidence I can share that Jacobo Adberstein is an exceptional young man. His admittance into your university would prove to be a winning decision for everyone. With over 3500 students at Reagan, it should make a statement that this young man has stood out, made an impact, and stands among those that I proudly can call by name and confirm their ability to succeed.

Sincerely,
Brenda Shelton
